KITIKMEOT INUIT ASSOCIATION
REQUEST FOR RECORD SUSPENSION (PARDON) ASSISTANCE

What is a Record Suspension?

A Record Suspension (aka a Pardon) allows people convicted of a criminal offence to have their criminal record kept separate and apart from other criminal records.

That means, your convictions get set aside. This can help with getting a job, and travel.

How to get a Record Suspension?

The Parole Board of Canada (PBC) is the government agency that decides who gets a Record Suspension (and who doesn't). You can learn more here: https://www.canada.ca/en/parole-board.html .

If you are a KIA beneficiary, you can ask for free help with your application.
Please fill out this form – print and bring it to the KIA, or it submit online.

Submitting this form does not guarantee your acceptance into the program and does not establish a solicitor client-relationship with lawyer Paul Falvo. It is a request for assistance. Your application will be screened before acceptance.

Are you eligible?

To be eligible, you must be a Kitikmeot beneficiary enrolled in the Nunavut Agreement. You must have completed your sentence (including Probation) five years ago or more.
If you were sentenced to a Fine, and you did not pay it, you will not get a Record Suspension. Pay it now and wait five years, then apply.

If you have had recent trouble with police, including "drunk tank," even if you did not get charged or arrested, your application may be questioned or denied.

It takes a long time!

It can take three years, or even more, to get a record suspension! Start now.

Please fill this out truthfully, as best you can. Talk to KIA – or contact Paul if you have questions.
